

Mt. Fuji to the Eastern Himalayas- Miss World Japan Priyanka Yoshikawa to visit Assam in November

Miss World Japan 2016, Priyanka Yoshikawa will travel to Assam, India for the Eastern Himalayan Naturenomics™ Forum on 2nd and 3rd November.

TOKYO, MINATO-KU, JAPAN, June 3, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Priyanka (managed by La Ditta

The snow-capped mountains of Mt. Fuji and the enchanted Shangri-La is a symbol of pride for communities living in these regions and young voices like Priyanka are our hope for a "preserved" tomorrow."

Mr. Ranjit Barthakur, Balipara Foundation

Limited - Japan and Maido Enterprises Private Limited- India) has been a role model for Japan and India's youth representing the rich bio-cultural heritage of both the Nations with pride. She will be delivering the sub keynote at the Forum to evangelize "Community Conservation and Social Mobility". With the welfare of the communities that live in the forests and the lost habitats of Asian Elephants, she emphasizes the importance of community conservation in order to live in harmony with nature and to help restore safe habitats for the people and elephants.

Over the years, Japan and India have been closely attached through cultural exchange and the common goal of Wildlife protection. Due to her great compassion and love for elephants, Priyank obtained the Laos National Elephant Trainer Certification so that she could gain a deeper level of understanding about the issues threatening these magnificent creatures. She also hopes to foster Eco-Elephant Tourism between India, Japan, and throughout the rest of Asia. During her trip, she will be exploring the Wildlife friendly tea plantations of Assam and honoring real heroes of Conservation- Mahouts, elephant legends of the Eastern Himalayas and forest guards, who work tirelessly to protect India's natural treasures.

The Forum provides a platform to recognize the role of Botany and local communities in the conservation of ecosystems through the lens of Naturenomics™, innovation, and information. During the Forum Priyanka will be visiting the Eastern Himalayan Botanic Ark, a biodiverse haven of the Eastern Himalayas, which has been nurtured and grown by Botany Villages that live around the Ark.

Coming from a mixed background of Japanese and Indian descent, Priyanka is proud and excited to help share the cultures of both countries. She is equally excited about her visit to India and to celebrate the diversity of nature, arts, history and culture with its people. She will be traveling through Assam from 1st to 5th November, supported by Balipara Foundation and has been invited by Ranjit Barthakur, Founder Trustee of Balipara Foundation, Founder of the Eastern Himalayan Naturenomics™ Forum and Elephant Country - a global brand which synergizes community and elephant conservation efforts.

She is also the brand ambassador for "Me for the World" a revolutionary charity savings coin box, that encourages children to save for themselves and give back to global communities. During her visit, she will be visiting schools to interact with children and inspiring the next generation through charity and compassion. She is scheduled to be accompanied by Harry Hakuei Kosato, Founder and Managing Director of La Ditta Limited, promoter of Japanese arts and culture in India for the last 10 years through both "Sushi and More" and "The Cool Japan Festival", India's largest Japan event.

Speaking about their association, Mr. Ranjit Barthakur, Balipara Foundation says – "The snow-capped mountains of Mt. Fuji and the enchanted Shangri-La is a symbol of pride for communities living in these regions and young voices like Priyanka are our hope for a "preserved" tomorrow." Reciprocating his thought, Mr. Harry affirms that "Japan and India are indeed connected through a rich heritage and this association is likely to further strengthen the relationship and establish a global footprint in championing elephant tourism. We are excited about multiple collaboration opportunities between India and Japan, and am privileged and honored to work with the Balipara Foundation. It has been my dream to visit the Eastern Himalayas, and I am happy that our world-first product "Me For The World" will be introduced to India shortly with the support and guidance of Ranjit San."

Visiting Kyoto Ambassador and Miss World Japan 2016 title holder Priyanka said "I am privileged to meet Ranjit san of the Balipara Foundation in Mumbai and am excited and humbled to be working with the team for this exciting initiative. I will be back regularly to India starting with this trip where I am seeking opportunities in Bollywood and the India Fashion scene working with Amazon.com's creative director and fashion designer Narendra Kumar, and I envisage great collaboration between

Miss World Japan 2016, Priyanka Yoshikawa

The Eastern Himalayan Naturenomics™ Forum, 2017 on 2nd and 3rd November.

Japan and India in this 2017 year of friendship between Japan and India."
