“

Executive & Leadership Coach Jean Erickson Walker has an Amazing ability to Transform Leaders in Business to Gain the FEARLESS CONFIDENCE needed in order to SUCCESSFULLY to LEAD.”
ACC GLOBAL MEDIA RESEARCH DEPARTMENT

For over 20 years, Executive Coach and author Jean Erickson Walker has guided people through the twists and turns of their careers, assisting leaders, managers, leadership teams and mid/senior level professionals to be more successful in their current positions or seeking new opportunities.

Jean spent years working in outplacement businesses witnessing the obstacles career transition created for individuals and organizations alike. She observed the circumstances that led some people to higher and higher levels of achievement and forced others to fall by the wayside.

Why did some companies seem to miss the mark, while others continued to expand? Why did so many leaders not understand their own communication styles were stifling their employees' potentials? When would they realize if they were the smartest person in the room, they were hiring the wrong people or not doing their own job of growing and developing their greatest resources, their people?

Much too often, people become victims of the past, struggling to make changes to meet new challenges, failing to understand they are their own worst enemies, expecting too little of themselves, too much of others, lacking the self-knowledge to be confident in decision making and interpersonal relationships. They learn skills and are bound to them, rather than exploring new options. They are stymied by age and experience in a culture enthralled by youth and technology. Jean teaches them how to combine their hard earned wisdom with innovation in order to lead the race to the future.

“My role is to help people find success as they define it. Executive Coaching is a discovery process that uncovers the answers inside ourselves just waiting to be revealed. Each of us is unique, born with the gift of talents. Our job is to build skills around them and find the vision to enhance them to serve our own mission and make meaningful contributions to our world,” stresses Walker.

Jean has an unparalleled professional background that has enabled her to build an expanding global client base. In person, by Skype, phone or email; Jean is fully accessible to meet her client’s needs. Jean provides client-centered and result driven sessions that have spread across the world. Her personalized approach has been incredibly valuable to the growth of her client base, as word-of-mouth brings clients from around the world to learn and grow under her guidance.

With a wealth of experience in Executive Coaching, Career Counseling and Leadership Development across a broad range of industries, non-profits and boards of directors both nationally and internationally, her client list includes international marketplace leaders such as TATA, Halliburton, Oracle, MAN Diesel & Turbo, AXA Asset Management, and Groupe Bolloré as well as a wide array of regional organizations and individuals.

In 2000, Jean added author to her professional profile with the release of The Age Advantage: Making the Most of Your Midlife Career Transition, which is available at www.amazon.com and www.jeanericksonwalker.com. Publishers Weekly described her as, “Blunt, compassionate and effective.”

Public speaking is her opportunity to challenge people to rise above their own limitations and expectations and she has enjoyed speaking to the Harvard School of Business Alumnae in Cambridge, MA and the Wharton School of Business Alumnae in Boston, MA as well as numerous professional associations including the International Assoc. of Career Management Firms in Prague, the Czech Republic, and Vancouver, BC, multiple keynote addresses and seminars to the International Assoc. of Career Management Professionals including Toronto, Montreal, London, Washington DC, San Francisco, and Chicago, and leading a panel discussion in Puerto Rico for career professionals from 29 countries

“Honor the person that you are, peel the layers and find the richness within. Our sessions are a partnership, an exhilarating adventure to the future, just waiting to unfold,” Walker advises.
