

Energy Ventures Analysis Webinar Series

For the past 35 years, Energy Ventures Analysis has provided its clients with a wide range of environmental and power related power offerings

ARLINGTON, VA, USA, June 12, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- For the past 35 years, Energy Ventures Analysis has provided its clients with a wide range of environmental consulting services. EVA's environmental compliance modeling is strongly interconnected with its state-of-the-art hourly dispatch model, representing the entire North American power market, making it superior to another environmental compliance modeling available in the marketplace. U.S. electric power markets are extremely regional entities that have their own unique set of characteristics. Each electric power market has become increasingly complex as power generation owners are subject to a dynamic regulatory landscape, volatile commodity prices, and uncertain load demand. EVA's power practice focuses on identifying these unique regional characteristics at a very granular level and then compiles them into a structured and systematic assessment of each region
