“It’s an honor and privilege to receive this award, especially when judged among many worthy peers,” said CEO Landon Ray. “It’s been nothing but a team effort, though. This recognition underscores the hard work of all ONTRAPORT’s employees who continue to propel our business for even greater leadership ahead. I’m a firm believer that if you treat employees like they make a difference, then they will.”

“Every member of this team, from every department and level, is such a unique and powerful asset to our organization,” President Lena Requist added. “We actively strive to show them how grateful we are to have them by cultivating a positive environment. Receiving this award is beyond humbling, and we are both truly honored.”

About Landon Ray

Landon Ray, ONTRAPORT’s Founder and CEO, is a serial entrepreneur whose personal mission is to educate, motivate and enable others to realize their goal of starting and growing their own business. At the age of 25, Landon transformed himself from a street-corner flower vendor into one of the nation's top securities day traders in only twelve months. After beating the odds on Wall Street, and again during the great recession, Landon used his research and personal experience to create ONTRAPORT, a small business automation platform and related family of services, which reflects his passion for educating and supporting entrepreneurs.

About Lena Requist

Lena Requist, President of ONTRAPORT, is passionate about growing businesses and was the driving force in ONTRAPORT's 5,000% growth, which landed the organization on Inc. 500's list of America's Fastest Growing Companies for four consecutive years. The recipient of a 2017 Silver Stevie Award for Executive of the Year in Computer Software, Lena's impressive background of building startups into multimillion dollar companies has made a difference for thousands of small business owners. She has fostered a progressive company culture of productivity, empowerment, and free thinking, for which ONTRAPORT continues to receive countless awards.
