The analysts forecast the global concrete and cement market to grow at a CAGR of 7.85% during the period 2016-2020.

Concrete has high compressive strength, resisting corrosive, and weathering effects. Different types of concrete are high-density concrete, lightweight concrete, pre-packed concrete, RMC, and shotcrete. The revival of the global construction sector during 2011-2015 contributed to the global concrete market in terms of increased investments. It also has led to a heightened demand for residential, commercial, and public infrastructure.

The demand for cement remains unaffected despite price fluctuations. Over the years, cement has replaced other binding materials such as lime and clay. Cement manufacturing takes place in bulk and in a controlled environment. If stored under favorable conditions, the durability of cement is relatively long. Different types of cement are air-entraining cement, blast furnace slag cement, colored cement, high alumina cement, hydrographic cement, low heat cement, pozzolanic cement, quick setting cement, and white cement.
