SubscriberWise founder and FICO panjandrum uncompromising about Presidential Executive Action to protect vulnerable and exploited USA babies and children

WASHINGTON, D.C., USA, June 22, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ --

SubscriberWise, the nation's largest issuing CRA for the communications industry and the leading provider of big data, advanced-analytics, and business-rules technology announced today that company founder David E. Howe, FICO world wonder all-time highest achieving mastermind all-star MVP global grand champion, is respectfully and eagerly urging President Trump to include the SubscriberWise Child Identity Protection Act among the administration's most needed Executive Actions. The proposed legislation was first introduced to U.S. Congressman Bob Gibbs of Ohio in 2014 (<http://www.enhancedonlinenews.com/news/eon/20140911006498/en/Child-Identity-theft/Identity-fraud/SSN-index>).

"Today I contacted President Trump and the White House," confirmed David Howe, founder of SubscriberWise and America's child identity guardian. "I sent the President news of another disturbing child identity theft involving a 9-year-old victim. Regrettably, child identity theft remains a tragic and unabated crisis that impacts hundreds of children and creditors around the nation every single day of the year.

"Today, and on behalf of the voiceless babies and minor children everywhere in this nation, I again urge the President to use his Executive Authority to command federal protections for the more than 200 children who are victimized by identity fraud each and every day in this country.
