

Katherine Hartvickson of Quantum Ascendance to be Featured on CUTV News Radio

TYLER, TEXAS, UNITED STATES, June 23, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Strong leadership means people want to work for you and do their best work for you even when you're not looking.

Katherine Hartvickson is a high-performance HR and leadership consultant and the founder of Quantum Ascendance. She works with small business owners, entrepreneurs and career professionals to improve their human resource and leadership skills.

"The reason I chose Quantum Ascendance for the name of my company is with my proven methods I get you farther, faster than you could ever go on your own. My best clients are people who are already successful and are ready to take that next step but not sure what to do to get there," says Katherine.

Prior to Quantum Ascendance, Katherine led HR teams throughout North America, Latin America, South America and China. Her entire career has been about building up talent within organizations so they can be more successful and each person reaches their maximum potential professionally and personally.

"Small business owners are often experts at what they do but they don't know a lot about leading teams," says Katherine. "They need to hear the naked truth about their challenges, where they need to improve and how they can change their mindset, habits and processes to move forward exponentially."

Katherine says what holds people back are the old mental programming and messages that we've adopted as our truth over years and years of conditioning. Katherine works with her clients' full brain to remove the mask and lay new neural pathways to success.

"We have so much power that doesn't get tapped into. Working with the mindset is about helping people get out of their own way," says Katherine. "You have to learn to draw from within. It's a matter of building up that confidence to pull what you already have available naturally inside and make your strengths stronger so that they serve you."

Katherine says she was always focused on being the best at whatever she decided to do so that she had control over her own destination. Now she helps others remove the chains holding them back so that they, too, get to do what they've always dreamed of doing.

"We start from where you are today," says Katherine. "I help you build your confidence muscle, discover your true passion and get you on the path to joy and success on your terms,"

CUTV News Radio will feature Katherine Hartvickson in an interview with Jim Masters on June 27th at 1pm EDT.
