Increasing production and consumption of wine, increasing demand for wine, increasing disposal income and changing preferences for alcoholic beverages are the drivers for global wine packaging market. However, high raw material costs are restraining the market growth. Glass bottle segment has the leading market for wine packaging. Due to its neutral and non reactive nature, glass bottle is most suitable material for wine packaging. Alternatives such as cans, plastic cups, plastic bottles and aseptic cartons are increasing their popularity due to appeal to younger consumers and product differentiation capability.
