

Level Office purchases Downtown Denver building

DENVER, CO, UNITED STATES, June 23, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Coworking company Level Office is expanding into Downtown Denver with the purchase of 1630 Welton Street. The Chicago-based company acquired the ten-floor building on June 14 and plans to renovate it to provide modern and affordable workspace. Leasing is already underway for private offices and coworking memberships, with both available this July.

“Small business growth in Denver is accelerating, and we are thrilled to offer local business owners and entrepreneurs professional, flexible, and budget-friendly workspace in a fantastic location,” said Bill Bennett, Founder of Level Office.

Built in 1979, the 125,233 square-foot building will feature nine floors of private offices and office suites, rooftop event space, and a basement space for locker rooms and bike storage. Plans for the building include office suites for 10 to 100 person firms, private offices, coworking desks, and technology rich conference rooms. Amenities include communal lounge areas with 24-foot ceilings, a rooftop deck, espresso bar, direct fiber internet, local beer on tap, collaborative meeting space, and on-site administrative support.

With pricing of $99 for monthly coworking memberships and starting at $399 for private offices, Level Office seeks to provide small businesses and entrepreneurs unheard-of pricing with high-caliber amenities that are historically only available to the largest companies.

“We are excited by Denver’s great lifestyle and supportive environment for small businesses,” Bennett said. “The city’s strong economic growth and diverse, creative community make it an ideal place for Level Office members to work.”
