SONAR System Market 2017

Executive Summary

Sound navigation and ranging, also known as sonar, is a sensing technique of employing sound propagation for navigating, detecting, and communicating with underwater objects. Sonar systems emit sound pulses and measure their return after they are reflected from man-made or biological/physical objects. The effective use of sonar systems ensures effective exploration and mapping of oceans by using sound waves. These waves travel farther in water compared to light waves and radar. Sonar also has effective uses in various non-defense applications such as oil and gas exploration, fishing and fishery management, and hydrographic research.

The analysts forecast the global SONAR system market to grow at a CAGR of 8.12% during the period 2017-2021.
