After the event, the team will once again be heading out in the field to research the creature and begin filming of the new "Dark and Violent World of Bigfoot". Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas are on the schedule for the team to be meeting with witnesses, investigating recent sightings, and collecting evidence in an effort to secure bona-fide evidence that the creature exists. Each feature film will detail two real life stories in which the creature is suspected of committing violent acts. That's right the creature is not always the benevolent beast that is portrayed in most of the stories produced. We are going to show the world the news articles, the case files from NCIC, including incidents of mutations of the creature at nuclear reactor facilities, the real life events of the creature protecting itself when it was backed in a corner.

If you have had a recent sighting, visit our website to enter the Bigfoot Bounty promotion for your chance to win.
