

Market Demand Prompts Design Change of Naples' Trio Development

Design of a new luxury condominium and hotel development in Naples, FL, is being revised thanks to developer's mandate to meet customer demands.

NAPLES, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES, July 18, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Design of the new luxury Trio hotel and condominium development is undergoing revision following extensive market analysis and review of feedback from area Realtors and customers. For buyers, the design changes will ultimately result in greater floor plan options but even better, lower pricing of residences.

“We listen to our customers and are committed to providing what they want,” explains David Bartley. “There’s a lot of excitement about this project and the appeal it will have for residents that desire to live near the downtown area of Naples. We’ve sought feedback as to how we could make it even more appealing. The design changes are driven by our determination to let customers know that we not only genuinely care about what they think, but we’re willing to take action on their recommendations too,” says Bartley.

the residences are now priced under $1 million, a move that further reflects the developer's resolve to offer greater choices for customers. “We’re aligning the pricing with what buyers have indicated as the sweet spot,” says Bartley, who adds other design changes include greater number of rooms for the hotel operations side of the development.

The Trio is being developed at the intersection of Davis Boulevard and Hwy 41 South in Naples, just minutes from the beaches as well as the boutique shops, restaurants and art galleries clustered among the down town area of Naples and world famous Fifth Avenue South.
