Take-out food is often viewed as synonymous with fast food. The concept of take-out food and the practice of buying prepared foods for consumption elsewhere date to very old times, but the popularity have only heated up in the recent decades. Rapidly growing order-and-pay apps, third-party online ordering and delivery services make 'fine dining from home' easier than ever and, in some cases, "dining out" a thing of the past. App-only services that deliver food from different restaurants, food trucks and joints have transformed the way food delivery was once viewed and interpreted.

The key factors which are anticipated to drive this market include growing urbanization, increased usage of internet worldwide, growing household consumption expenditure and rising use of mobile internet in emerging markets. Some of the noteworthy trends of this industry include positive tailwinds in emerging markets, rapid online adoption driven by smartphone usage, high usage of online portals by youngsters and overall market consolidation. However, the growth of respective industry is challenged by seasonality of demand and difficulty for new entrants.

The report provides a comprehensive study of global takeaway food delivery market and also major regional markets. Furthermore, market dynamics such as key trends and development; and challenges are analyzed in depth. The global takeaway food delivery industry is highly competitive consisting of several large enterprises including the Rocket Internet, Yelp Inc., Just Eat Plc and Grubhub. The competitive landscape of the respective market, along with the company profiles of the leading players are also discussed in detail.
