Global Extruded Plastics Market Information-by Type , by End-User and by Region - Forecast till 2022

PUNE, MAHARASHTRA, INDIA, July 24, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ --

Market Synopsis of Global Extruded Plastics Market:

The Global Extruded Plastics Market is expected to grow at USD 280 billion in 2022 with the CAGR of 4.9% from 2016 to 2022. The drivers of this market are low feedstock and rise in energy price that tends to reduce the overall cost of extrudes. In-addition to this an innovation in extruded plastics to be utilized in medical and agriculture market will fuel this market. The polystyrene segment is expected to grow tremendously at the CAGR during the forecast period. Low thermal conductivity and poor resistance to oxygen and moisture make this resin a suitable material to be used in packaging of food products. In addition to this, polystyrene is an inexpensive thermoplastic resin to be used in, toys, construction and others.

Polystyrene finds applications in food/non-food packaging, and in consumer products such as frames, cable ducts, tubes, sale displays/signage, containers, bottles, trays, tumblers, disposable cutlery and others.

Geographically, maximum consumer of Extruded Plastics Market is in Asia-Pacific followed by U.S. in North America which shows a remarkable growth of the Extruded Plastics Market due to the growing automobile sector there. Europe show a stable growth due to recent economic crises in Western Europe.
