Description

Surgical navigation, also referred to as computer-assisted image-guided surgery, is a procedure for locating a specific target site for surgery using computer software. Surgical navigation software allows surgeons to accurately track, analyze, and monitor surgical instruments relative to a patient's anatomy during surgical procedures to improve surgery outcomes. The software concentrates on procedural simplification and flexibility of workflow that meets specific surgeon needs. Surgical navigation software aid in continuously tracking the position of the surgical instrument in relation to the patient's anatomy, displaying the real-time situation on a computer screen. The imaging features of the software help to improve precision during surgery and provides real-time surgical data to reduce issues.
