

Award winning murder mystery creator launches brand new immersive solo play product on Kickstarter

Already funded and with two weeks left to run, Cosykiller looks set to be a new gaming experience that will take the world by storm.

GRIMSBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, UK, August 18, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Red Herring Games have been creating award winning murder mystery games for over 10 years.

Cosykiller is their latest murder mystery design and is aimed primarily at the solo sleuth. With just two weeks left to run on their Kickstarter Crowdfunding campaign and already fully funded - this new game format looks set to take the world by storm.

The unique crime puzzle game will enable individual players to immerse themselves in the golden age of fiction in a self-driven investigation which will require all their intelligence and perception. It's like an Agatha Christie novel but with you playing Miss Marple!

Unlike many role playing games on the market which are utilising modern gadgetry, Red Herring Games have returned to old fashioned era of deduction, presenting the players with documents and artifacts from the 1930s as they try to discover the perpetrators of a cold case.

“Everyone is going digital these days,” Said managing director Jo Smedley, “But we wanted to go back to the touchy-feely world of the 1930s. No one gets mail any more. Everything is on-line, but there is something really special about handling letters and objects. We wanted to supply a product that was immersive, engaging, and encouraged discussion.”

Cosykiller is the first murder mystery game aimed at the solo sleuth, but it's also ideal for families and small groups.

“Families and small groups can work together to puzzle out the boxes.” Jo Smedley said. “We imagine over the course of the year players might end up producing their own version of an incident board to help them puzzle through the mystery.”

The company has launched the project on Kickstarter on the 1st August and within 24 hours had already raised 70% of their development. With just under two weeks left to run, Red Herring Games are appealing to those interested in obtaining the first box for Christmas to sign up through their Kickstarter program now. Those interested can pledge to receive just one box or the entire series and join the others who are gaining a massive discount before the product goes live just before Christmas this year.
