leading-edge provider of on-demand technology and business advisory services, announces the addition of its CEO, Adnane Charchour to the Forbes Technology Council, an invitation-only community for world-class CIOs, CTOs and technology executives.

Adnane joins other Forbes Technology Council members, who are hand-selected, to become part of a curated network of successful peers and get access to a variety of exclusive benefits and resources.

Forbes Councils combines an innovative, high-touch approach to community management perfected by the team behind Young Entrepreneur Council (YEC) with the extensive resources and global reach of Forbes. As a result, Forbes Council members get access to the people, benefits and expertise they need to grow their businesses — and a dedicated member concierge who acts as an extension of their own team, providing personalized one-on-one support.

"We're incredibly excited to be a part the renowned Forbes Council family," stated Exous CEO, Adnane Charchour. "This further cements Exous's leadership role in the greater technology community, enabling us to extend our global reach and business impact."

Scott Gerber, founder of Forbes Councils, says, "We are honored to welcome Adnane into the community. Our mission with Forbes Councils is to curate successful professionals from every industry, creating a vetted, social capital-driven network that helps every member make an even greater impact on the business world."

About Forbes Councils

Forbes partnered with the founders of Young Entrepreneur Council (YEC) to launch Forbes Councils, invitation-only communities for world-class business professionals in a variety of industries. Members, who are hand-selected by each Council's community team, receive personalized introductions to each other based on their specific needs and gain access to a wide range of business benefits and services, including best-in-class concierge teams, personalized connections, peer-to-peer learning, and a business services marketplace.
