

Trust Megatrends: A Blockchain Masterclass, London, October 12, 2017

Quadriga Consulting will be holding a masterclass in the City of London to discuss how blockchain has the potential to redefine trust in financial services.

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, August 22, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Some have described it as the fourth industrial revolution: when technology becomes embedded in society. Others talk about the new digital economy where technology starts governing, assuring and auditing itself. But, increasingly, there's agreement that the enabling technology will be blockchain. The effects on financial services will be profound.

Blockchain Masterclass

On October 12th Quadriga Consulting will be holding a masterclass right in the heart of the City of London to discuss how this incredible technology has the potential to create trust, and assure value, in financial services.

The Masterclass will draw upon a core team of blockchain experts who are already delivering blockchain implementations and pilots across financial services, insurance and public administration.”

Jeffrey Peel

New trust-based platforms are being created across industries – but especially within the financial sector. Many believe that this new model of governance via blockchain will define new paradigms of business computing in financial services over the next 10-15 years.

According to Masterclass organiser, Jeffrey Peel, “The Masterclass will draw upon a core team of blockchain experts who are already delivering blockchain implementations and pilots across financial services, insurance and public administration. We’ll also discuss the emerging ICO market and funding of blockchain based FinTech ventures.”

He continued, “The masterclass will be an ideal immersive session for technology transformation strategists, product specialists and innovation leaders – as well as blockchain entrepreneurs. It will allow companies to get deeper insight into how creating value-centred processes could improve mutual trust and reduce the cost of doing business in financial markets.”
