

Selflessness Continues to Prevail Amidst Hurricane Harvey

Nurses, corporations, Americans band together in fundraising, donations, and rescue efforts

LEHI, UTAH, UNITED STATES, September 1, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- As America's southern coast endures one of the most devastating storms in its history, trained professionals, courageous volunteers, and concerned citizens across the nation are doing anything they can to help. Allie Pillow of Nashville, mother of two and registered nurse, is one of hundreds of medical personnel volunteering their skills to tend to survivors of Hurricane Harvey in the most inaccessible parts of Texas. They are air-lifted in with military Black Hawks, and most volunteers prepare to stay for at least two weeks, working 18-hour days.

Allie, who is also a Younique Presenter, has kept her team of independent beauty consultants informed via Facebook Live. Though some videos are harder to watch than others, she continues to work hard toward her own goals of changing women's lives through her makeup business, appropriately calling herself the Confidence Consultant.

Younique was so inspired by these efforts and the efforts of several other Younique Presenters, like Bri Richardson and Whitney Husband who are gathering and transporting hundreds of donations to relieve survivors, and Heidi Boss who is opening up her Missouri home to anyone who needs a place to stay, that the company is donating $20,000 to Direct Relief, and activating its nearly 850,000 global Presenters to assist in donating to one of four worthy organizations via PayPal Giving Fund at <http://yq.link/harveyrelief>.
