"If you pay attention to the life of an agent, their adaptation to their surrounding will amaze you. Forced to play different roles, keep track of deals, work with clients, negotiate, and move the industry, it's not a career that is cut out for just any body. There's a tremendous amount of discipline and sacrifice agent's must maintain, which is not so obvious from the outside. We have created these awards because we recognize the amount of skill and talent it takes to become a top agents. Their status is a symbol of consumer trust they have built over the span of their careers, which can only be as a result of the value they add in their markets, and for that, they we are happy to reward them with recognition."

Being recognized by GREL as The Capital Award winner will initiate a sense of entitlement and honor which can be shown to clientele as something that surpasses a reference, but as ovation worthy. The agents whom are awarded will be those who are not just great, but superb in the industry of real estate. They must be leaders who are willing and striving to provide the highest quality real estate services for their clientele while changing the industry in a positive manner. You are the future of real estate, and let GREL be your guide.
