AlphaBiolabs

This month sees the launch of our newlook logo and revamped website. Our fully-comprehensive web pages still outline all the DNA, drugs and alcohol testing services that we offer, but we've made it easier to navigate. Our client base is diverse and wide ranging. It includes members of the public, businesses, family and immigration law solicitors, social services, academic institutions and even the media. Our services have been trusted by TV programmes such as BBC One's Family Finders and we've been

There's lots going on at AlphaBiolabs. It's an exciting time for the company and we encourage our customers to keep an eye out for all the new services and innovations via our new-look website." David Thomas providing DNA testing to The Jeremy Kyle Show for over 12 years.

Now, it will be easier for each and every one of our customers to find the right test they need. The public will access our Peace of Mind and home test kits. Our legal clients will save time by going direct to the relevant legal pages, each subdivided into the relevant headings: immigration, local authority, sample collection. We even have the option of instant quotes at the push of a button.

Since it was established in 2004, AlphaBiolabs has consistently led in its field by investing in state-of-the-art testing services, winning awards and gaining accreditations for the quality of its work. And we continue to innovate the testing industry. This month also sees the launch of our SCRAM Continuous Alcohol Monitoring® (SCRAM CAM®) alcohol-testing bracelet. Worn on the ankle, the unique bracelet tests for the presence of alcohol in perspiration every 30 minutes. Alphabiolabs is confident that this form of continuous monitoring will provide local authorities, courts and child-protection agencies with the tools to change behaviours in alcohol-dependent clients.

"There's lots going on at AlphaBiolabs", said Managing Director David Thomas. "It's an exciting time for the company and we encourage our customers to keep an eye out for all the new services and innovations via our new-look website."
