

Reasons to have permanent makeup

Permanent makeup has you looking your best permanently. No need to "touch up" and no more worrying about getting caught in the rain.

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, September 20, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- "A lot of people think this is tattoos. The process is similar, but this is actually micropigmentation," said Mahnaz Bahaelou owner of Elite Permanent Makeup LA. "The difference is micropigmentation does not penetrate the skin as deeply as a tattoo and the composition of the coloring agents is every different."

Bahaelou offered several reasons why someone might consider getting permanent makeup.

1) Age.

The aging process brings other problems that make the hands less steady. Applying makeup with shaking hands can be a major chore. Permanent makeup eliminates that problem.

2) Amortized cost.

The up front cost of permanent makeup does seem to be expensive. "But, compare this one-time cost to how much you may spend over a year or more for makeup that you remove," Bahaelou said. "Some ladies find out the process pays for itself in six months."

3) Time.

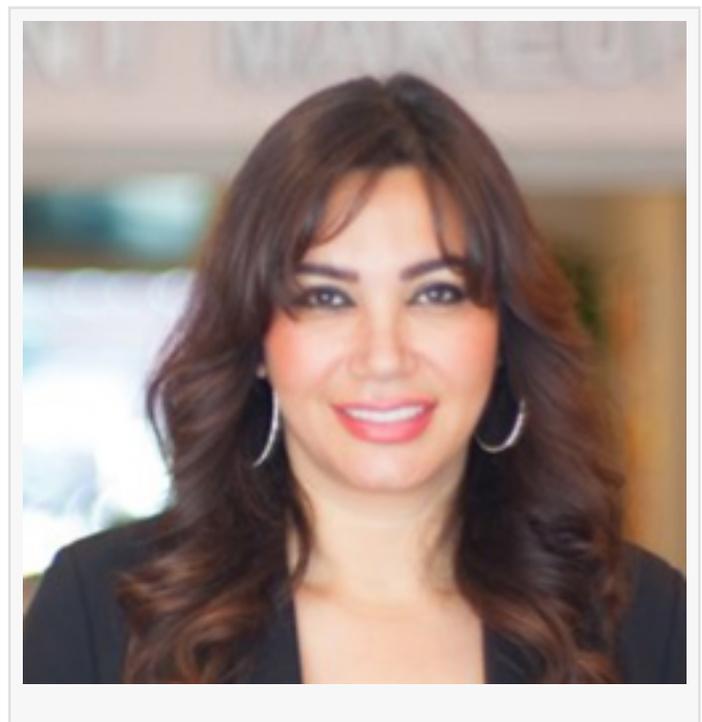

"When you makeup is already on, you save time every day. You don't have to put it on. Even five minutes in the morning is five minutes a day," Bahaelou said. "Time matters."

4) Allergies.

Over time, people can develop allergies to just about anything, including makeup. People with sensitive skin may also have problems with makeup. Micropigmentation eliminates that problem and potential problem permanently.

5) Stays up.

Even the very best makeup will run and smear under the right conditions. With permanent makeup, there is nothing to run, remove or smear. It's there and it stays put even when swimming in the ocean.
