

Real-time Outlook-Google Sync using CompanionLink

Connect Google to Outlook for Calendar sharing to phones.

PORTLAND, OR, UNITED STATES, September 20, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- It takes just five seconds for CompanionLink to update Outlook when you make a change in Google. This amazing speed is available because CompanionLink is one of the few software solutions that uses real-time notifications from Google. CompanionLink for Google will synchronize your Contacts, Calendar and Tasks from Google to Microsoft Outlook, without needing an exchange account or office subscription.

“Android and iOS devices will synchronize with Google for free,” says Wayland says Wayland Bruns, Chief Technical Officer at CompanionLink. “Microsoft is pushing everyone to need Office 365 online at the same time as they raise prices for that service. It’s easy with CompanionLink to use Outlook and the whole Microsoft Suite, without needing a subscription. All you need is CompanionLink software to finish the connection from Outlook to Google.”

CompanionLink has published a guide to obtaining a Microsoft Outlook license without needing an Office 365 subscription.

<https://www.companionlink.com/support/kb/How to Use Outlook without Subscription> This guide covers how to obtain a license, and also how to migrate your Contacts, Calendar and Email to local files. CompanionLink for Google supports all Outlook versions, including Outlook 2007 and Outlook 2010. A separate application, CompanionLink for Mac will synchronize Outlook for Mac to Google.

Many customers use CompanionLink to schedule their staff. They use Microsoft Outlook in their home office, and set it with a category for each staff member. Then they use CompanionLink for Google to sync to separate Google Calendars. Their staff can each set their phone to pick up only their appointments. It’s a low cost way to schedule catering staff, remote repairmen, or any team that is dispatched from the home office.

CompanionLink for Google supports two-way sync for Calendar, Contacts and Tasks from Outlook to Google. Outlook Categories will sync to Google Groups. Calendar Colors are supported. CompanionLink supports the real-time capability of Google. CompanionLink for Google costs $49.95 and is also available for a 3-month subscription of $14.95. CompanionLink has free technical support, offers RunStart service for a one-time custom setup, and also has Premium Support options available.
