Pierre Bernard Jr. is a graphic designer and illustrator with experience in print and television graphics. Some of his past clients included Newsweek Magazine, Prudential Securities and NBC Universal. Aside from commercial art, he has gained recognition from TV appearances on Late Night with Conan O'Brien, where he is best known for the comedy bit "Pierre Bernard's Recliner of Rage." Recently some of his life drawings have been published in a book, "18 x 24 And Other Sizes". While promoting his art book at various locations, Pierre has been hosting drawing events, getting people of all ages to discover what it is like to draw from costumed Life Models.

"Life drawing in Los Angeles is more than just an exercise in studying anatomy and proportions, it transcends into a form of self-expression similar to poetry but with pictures. When I draw I try to capture the beauty of the person in front of me," says Bernard Jr., "I personally love drawing people in costumes because it brings out their personalities more so than being nude. Life drawing is more than just an activity, it's a lifestyle!" That's why our motto is, Cosplay Life Drawing, Bring Life Drawing to The Masses... One Event at A Time!"

Kendra will be wearing a Catwoman costume for the first half and a Batwoman costume for the second half of this event.

About Kendra Sunderland:

Kendra Sunderland's career in adult entertainment began when a racy public webcam peep show among the stacks of Oregon State University's Valley Library became the talk of the internet for weeks, and the 19-year-old media sensation's solo public display has become a viral sensation, earning her nickname, "Library Girl," a misdemeanor arrest and the kind of infamy that puts a girl on the fast track of stardom.

The former OSU freshman, who launched her career (and the notorious library video) in October, has since left college and shot for magazines like Xtreme, Hustler, Penthouse as Penthouse Pet of the month, and in 2016 became the very first Vixen Angel of the Month. She has won NightMoves Miss Congeniality in 2015 and an XBIZ award for Web Celebrity of the Year in 2016. Kendra uses her online fame to raise money for various charities and to send care packages to American troupes. In 2016 Kendra starred in her first hardcore movie, Natural Beauties, directed by Greg Lansky, that won her first AVN Award for Best Boy/Girl Scene of the Year. Kendra during the 2017 Adult Entertainment Expo was crowned Vixen Angel of the Year. In February of 2017 she became a Fleshlight Girl with her very own toy.
