

Tales of Modern Motherhood This Sh*t Just Got Real

Funny, endearing 'Tales of Modern Motherhood' explores reluctance of parenthood

LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, September 27, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Tales of Modern Motherhood: This Sh*t Just Got Real, written and performed by Pam Levin, is a brutally funny comedy about the uncertainties of becoming a parent, the FEAR of being a parent, and the reservations of why she didn't just settle for a dog. It addresses the good, the bad and the ugly truth about what really happens behind closed doors and gives a very honest perspective on the hardest job in the world, PARENTING! Director, Mark Hatfield said Levin's show is "like lassoing a tornado, wrestling an octopus and juggling chainsaws...then she whiplashes you with tender moments that will melt your heart..."

Pam Levin

Pam is a native of Northeast Philadelphia and a veteran in the one-woman show genre. She toured the world with the AWARD-WINNING show, The Quiet Room and performed In My Own X-Rated Words, written by Fredrica Duke both OFF Broadway and in Los Angeles. Tales of Modern Motherhood is her first original work and has had a phenomenal run in Los Angeles, playing to sold out houses ending in standing ovations. Curtain Up says: "Pam Levin is a force to be reckoned with, leaving a legacy, sure to resonate and ring true with all the women (and men in their lives)."

This one woman show is witty, entertaining, poignant, real, raw, all in one; in short, it's everything fine theatre should be.”

Bonnie Prieuer Curtain Up

The show makes it's East Coast Premiere at New York's United Solo Festival on Theatre Row, October 2nd (SoldOut) and October 6th. Be sure to check the United Solo Festival website for added performances.

*Tales of Modern Motherhood This Sh*t Just Got Real* opens January 6th, 2018 at Whitefire Theatre in Los Angeles as the featured production at Solofest 2018.
