

Helion's Erik Nachbahr To Address Auto Dealership Security Risks and Prevention at AICPA, NCM Mega-Dealer Group

TIMONIUM, MD, UNITED STATES, October 2, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Helion Automotive Technologies, a leading provider of information technology (IT) solutions for auto dealers, announced today that Erik Nachbahr will address security risks and prevention at the upcoming AICPA National Auto Dealership Conference in Las Vegas, NV and at the NCM Mega-Dealer Group.

"Data security continues to be a hot topic with dealers, especially in the wake of the Equifax breach," said Erik Nachbahr, President of Helion Automotive Technologies. "The threats out there are growing every day and it's such an important issue that dealers need to understand. It's very difficult and hugely expensive to clean up after a big breach so prevention is key."

At the NCM Mega-Dealer Group conference Nachbahr will present The State of I.T. For the Automotive Industry. In this session dealers will learn about the growing cybersecurity threats and how they can keep their data secure. Additionally, Nachbahr will share guidelines for scaling technology to support dealership growth and success.

Nachbahr's NCM Mega-Dealer Group session is scheduled for Wednesday, October 20th at 8:30 am EST.

At the AICPA National Auto Dealership Conference in Las Vegas, NV, Nachbahr will present IT Security, Productivity and Strategy for Dealerships. In this session Nachbahr will take a deep dive into:

- Cybersecurity: Learn what cyber liabilities are, how to identify them and protect yourself
- Voice: How a successful phone strategy can improve your bottom line
- Scalability: Why planning for the future now matters in a growing dealership
- IT Budgets: Discover the most important areas where you should be investing Nachbahr's session at AICPA is scheduled for Monday, October 25th at 5 p.m.
