According to "India Washing Machine Market Overview", the washing machine market is segmented in two categories viz. semi automatic and fully automatic machines. Both the categories have grown significantly in the past few years. Fully automatic washing machine market is further divided into front load and top load machines, out of which top load washing machine currently dominates the market and will continue to increase their share due to low prices. Front load washing machine segment is also expected to grow due to more energy efficient and advanced features.

Opportunities that can change the dynamics of this industry are favourable government initiatives, rise in disposable income, energy efficiency and launch of upcoming new innovative models. Technology and innovations are likely to play a key role in increasing the market share of organized players. Rise in income level, rapid urbanization and changing environmental dynamics are the major trends for this washing machine industry.
