PUNE, INDIA, October 4, 2017
/EINPresswire.com/ --

The analysts forecast the global automotive modular seating market to grow at a CAGR of 11.34% during the period 2017-2021.

The automotive seating market is increasingly experiencing innovations with new technologies coming to the front. Safety and comfort have become the main priorities for vehicle manufacturers. Advancements in biomechanics have led to new possibilities for seat functions, such as automotive modular seating- abetted by advanced electronics features.

OEMs' focus on developing autonomous driving is a key driver leading to innovations in the automotive seating market. This is because vehicle manufacturers believe that autonomous driving will lead to more advanced interiors as consumers have to spend more time on non-driving activities, such as using infotainment system and smart phones. Thus, vehicle manufacturers are focusing on reconfiguring the interior to allow passengers more freedom and luxury in autonomous vehicles.
