

Rosewill's METEOR Has Landed

The METEOR XR Series is comprised of two stunning ATX Mid Tower cases. Both feature large tempered glass on the side and are VR-ready for hassle-free setup.

CITY OF INDUSTRY, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, October 24, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- City of Industry, Calif. – Oct 24, 2017 – Rosewill, a leading manufacturer in quality, affordable PC hardware has recently launched a new LED-lit gaming computer case that is a sure-fire must-have for any PC builder on a budget. The METEOR XR Series is comprised of two stunning ATX Mid Tower cases with subtle, but distinct differences in appearance. Both have a polished front panel finish that adds to the refined aesthetic design, but the METEOR XR is designed with stylish dark details: black-on-black exterior and interior; while the METEOR XR PLUS has a black exterior and white interior accent that creates a contrasting, yet harmonized distinction of style. The modern design of the cases also feature large tempered glass on the side panel, displaying powerful components within the case with exquisite detail. These attributes allow DIY builders to uniquely tailor the interior of their systems and make it stand out amongst the rest.

In addition to the METEOR XR and METEOR XR Plus's sophisticated design, both gaming cases offer a great capacity for customization with maximum cooling capability and spacious interior. Building in this case is hassle-free due to its removable 5.25", 3.5" and 2.5" trays.

The magnetic dust filters also make it simple to maintain and adjust the system with very little to no effort at all. Furthermore, the case was constructed with upgrades in mind. The METEOR XR Series cases are designed to support 7 case fans, 360 mm liquid-cooling radiators, 360 mm XL Video Cards and up to a 160 mm tall CPU coolers. Gamers and PC builders never have to limit what they can fit in this case.
