

Best Selling Author Jay Bradley Provides Free Advice For Hair Loss Sufferers

Jay Bradley, best-selling author of "LIVE, LOOK, FEEL" launches review of hair loss treatments using only factual/scientifically validated reference sources.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, USA, October 17, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- After spending 30 years researching how food, supplements, exercise, spiritual practice, and lifestyle choices impact people's health, happiness and longevity, Jay Bradley has turned his attention to one of the most debilitating conditions that can impact a man's confidence and self-esteem – hair loss.

My goal was to answer the question of whether it's possible to keep a full and healthy head of hair without spending thousands on hair transplants, or are we destined to lose our crowning glory?”

The question Jay was trying to address is “Is it possible to keep our hair full, long and healthy without spending thousands of dollars on hair transplants, or are we destined to lose our crowning glory?”

Jay pulled together a team of independent researchers who reviewed the available hair loss treatment options and hair regrowth products on the market today to assess their effectiveness. His goal was to create a single source of information, to provide an unbiased view of all the various treatments available, how they work and how effective they are at treating hereditary baldness.

The result of this research, conducted over the last 12 months is a free independent report – 2017 Hair Loss Product Reviews. The report covers the pros and cons of each treatment and rates them according to their performance in growing hair, in blocking DHT, for side effects and overall performance.

The biggest problem for people suffering from hair loss, in weeding through all the various treatments, is being able to tell truth from fiction when it comes to the marketing spiel that the various companies put out in both their advertising and on their websites.

“My goal with this information”, says Jay, “is to help men cut through the made-up studies and fake clinical trials by providing them with unbiased reviews of available treatments. Included will be links to various websites and other pertinent information regarding each one. This will allow readers to see for themselves that the information provided is truly an unbiased review.”

His team did a great job of fact checking and have included trusted reference sources, which besides the product websites, are all verified medical journals, resources and other factual based information sources.
