Tire Retreading Market in the US 2017

Tire retreading is a remanufacturing process, where old tires are made serviceable by replacing the old treads on worn tires with new treads. Apart from natural and synthetic rubber as the primary raw materials, textile reinforcements, such as rayon, aramid, nylon, and polyester, are also used to manufacture treads. The production of retread tires is capital-intensive and requires a modular plant. In addition, it requires highly trained and skilled manpower for engineering and manufacture. The manufacturer must also adhere to the stringent industry standards at every stage of the retreading process while delivering a superior performance like the new tires. Therefore, retread tires undergo various quality, durability, and speed testing.

The analysts forecast the tire retreading market in the US to grow at a CAGR of 13.55% during the period 2017-2021.
