

World's Leading Real Estate Platform Introduces Altered Algorithms for Workout Module

GREL, the provider of online real estate education & technology solutions, today announced the addition of their altered algorithms for the workout modules.

PALO ALTO, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, December 4, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Global Real Estate Licence, the provider of online real estate education & technology solutions, is pleased to announce the additional altered algorithms for our Workout module, Bluegill 3.6. GREL's workout module has been in development for the past 9 months and will now teach agents scripts that has been carefully and skillfully designed for their greatest benefit. Each script has powerful keywords based off research on the top psychological, tonal, and neurolinguistic studies and methods. As of now, using the updated algorithms, agents will be seeing a total 25% boost in their level of confidence through productivity with closing, prospecting, negotiations, and presentations.

“Confidence is the deal breaker when it comes to sales. Majority of real estate agents face the problem of not being able to sell themselves, and their value, first. By tackling the greatest challenge through our algorithm, we are helping agents get over a large hurdle and open themselves up to more opportunities. Connecting all the pieces, agents are able to learn what to say, and how to speak, by listening to example and recording himself when practicing. Practicing a script in your head will not be as effective as practicing it out loud, especially when tone of voice contributes more to communication than just verbal communication.”

Real estate professionals are able to enhance verbal skills and increase their closing ratios by utilizing these scripts to their fullest potential. With the workout module being centralized around algorithms based off tonal patterns and psychological keywords, our agents will have the right annotation on ‘how to say the information’ and ‘how to deliver it’. Although you are given the utmost value from the course videos, GREL's workout module is compiled of linguistic and tonal exercises to help you strengthen your closing ratio. It has the potential to increase your total confidence level by 125%, with the preceding 100% coming from their Developer, Investors, and Broker edition courses.
