

Trackwired.com Launches Online Training Marketplace for Track and Field, Cross Country, and Road Running

Personalized Training Plans for Athletes, Coaches, Parents and Participants in Track and Field, Cross Country, and Road Running.

FAYETTEVILLE, AR, UNITED STATES, October 26, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Trackwired Inc, a unique sports training marketplace that offers custom training plans designed by elite level coaches for track and field, cross country, and road running announces the launch of Trackwired.com, co-founded by Travis Geopfert, Andrew Gilmore, and Tyler Geopfert.

Programs Designed By Elite Coaches

Trackwired.com is an online marketplace where athletes, coaches, parents and participants in track and field, cross country, and road running can access detailed training plans designed by elite coaches that are programmed for each individual user based on personal bests or goal times and distances. The workout plans range in length and price from 8 to 20 weeks and provide daily detailed instruction with drill descriptions and video explanations that can be accessed via a free Trackwired.com account or downloading the mobile application on iOS or Android devices.

"We created Trackwired to revolutionize every aspect of track and field, cross country and road running across all levels. Trackwired has something to offer every coach, athlete, parent and participant of any age and skill level." says Travis Geopfert, Chief Operating Officer and Co-Founder of Trackwired. "Our number one goal is to provide each user instant access to proven and vetted training content that allows them to train like a champion, achieve a personal best, or attain any goal in between."

In addition to launching Trackwired.com, Travis Geopfert is currently a prominent NCAA collegiate track and field coach, having coached multiple Olympians, National Champions, All-Americans, Junior Record holders, as well as being named the National Assistant Track and Field Coach of the Year. Geopfert teamed with Andrew Gilmore, a professional software engineer with over 15 years of experience in the private sector as the Chief Technology Officer, and Tyler Geopfert, an experienced entrepreneur and business broker as Chief Executive Officer, to create and launch Trackwired, Inc.

Trackwired.com serves the global community in track and field, cross country, and road running via their online marketplace, while maintaining a headquarters in Fayetteville, Arkansas.
