

Lehigh Valley Tech Provider is a Google Cloud Partner

KDG, a certified Google Cloud partner, can help small businesses with Google App Maker, Google AdWords, Google Cloud migration, and more.

ALLENTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA, UNITED STATES, November 28, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Small business tech provider KDG is a Google Cloud partner in the Lehigh Valley and beyond. Businesses looking to migrate emails, back up data, and store important files can find the help they need with KDG and Google Cloud.

“For businesses looking for both increased storage and increased security, G Suite is the ultimate tool,” says Pat Whalen, Head Technical Analyst at KDG.

G Suite is also a seamless solution for employees who want to connect and collaborate from anywhere, Whalen explains. G Suite gives businesses access to Google Drive, where employees can work together on documents, spreadsheets, presentations, and more.

In addition to G Suite services, the custom software developers at KDG also provide Google App Maker solutions. The team of developers can help businesses build, plan, and launch a custom app using the power of Google. The builder uses a drag-and-drop editor and little complex code.

Google App Maker is a new tool that will change the way businesses build custom web apps.”

Kyle David, CEO

“Google App Maker is a new tool that will change the way businesses build custom web apps,” explains Kyle David, CEO of KDG. “Not many other development teams offer the service. We’re one of only a few.”

Early access to the latest Google features, like App Maker, is a major benefit of working with a Google partner, David explains.

The team at KDG can do more than help build apps, however. From hosting with Google App Engine and Google Compute Engine to analyzing web traffic with Google AdWords and Google Analytics,

Google Cloud
Partner

Lehigh Valley IT support team, KDG, is a certified Google Partner for businesses.

KDGD

KDG is a full-service Google partner for any small business in the Lehigh Valley and beyond.
