PUNE, INDIA, November 17, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Summary

The demand for naval vessel engines is anticipated to be driven by high levels of expenditure by emerging economies in the Asia Pacific region, such as India and China. The North American region is expected to maintain its significance, exhibiting a steady pace of growth over the forecast period

Naval warfare has witnessed a paradigm shift globally, with an increasing trend towards the decentralization of naval attacks, whereby capabilities are distributed around smaller vessels in addition to larger platforms such as aircraft carriers and destroyers in order to make them more secure against an enemy attack. This has motivated governments around the world to spend on smaller surface combatants capable of operating in littoral waters, along with advanced weapons and communication systems to enable these ships to perform multiple missions. Moreover, providing humanitarian relief, emergency medical care, and combating smuggling, piracy, and terrorism has resulted in the continuous evolution of the role of naval vessels and associated engines
