

Combined Technologies Offers Various Contract Packaging & Custom Design Services

Combined Technologies is now able to offer their clients various forms of customized packaging design services.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS , USA, November 20, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- An IL-based company, Combined Technologies, is not only known for being able to provide a wide range of stock packaging products to various industries; the company has recently announced that it is now able to offer various custom design, contract packaging services and products as well.

The company's facilities consist of more than 70,000 square feet of secure working and storage areas, enabling them to offer clients the best quality packaging products and packaging design services possible. It is also one of few packaging facilities that are SQF Certified, Kosher and Certified Organic, enabling them to serve a wider range of industries than competitors.

As every company's contract packaging requirements are unique, this led Combined Technologies to offer customized design services for these products. Company representatives collaborate directly with clients to ensure that they are completely satisfied with each design and product upon completion.

The company focuses on using sustainable materials wherever possible and an extensive range of 3D capabilities are used in the design processes in order to obtain quick visualizations of the end product. This enables numerous prototypes to be created as cost- and time-effectively as possible.

Various types of contract packaging products and packaging designs are catered for at the company's facilities, including sample vitamin pouches, blister packaging, heat sealed packaging, gummy pouching and bottling, bulk bag and seal up to 15 pounds, composite canning/seaming and numerous forms of point of purchase display designs.

Regardless of what a company's particular packaging design requirements may be, Combined Technologies will be able to assist. Only the best quality packaging materials are used and an extensive knowledge base pertaining to the food marketing system ensures that companies will be able to improve their sales figures when using the right packaging products.
