Construction Waste Management Market 2017

Globally, the construction industry plays a significant role in the growth of an economy; however, the waste generated through building activities can cause serious damage to the environment if not managed properly. Construction waste may include a wide range of unwanted materials and most of them can be potentially recycled and reused. Construction waste management involves monitoring, collecting, transporting, recycling, and disposing of the waste generated from construction work.

The analysts forecast the global construction waste management market to grow at a CAGR of 9.67% by revenue over the period 2014-2019.
