The global professional skin care market is driven by several factors, with the most important one being the multi-functionality of cosmetic formulae. Increase in demand for anti-aging products, emergence of tailor-made products, and increased demand for sunscreen products are some other drivers. These products are also available in the form of gift packages.

Technavio's analysts forecast the global professional skin care market to grow at a CAGR of 6.15% over the period 2014-2019.
