While there are many very good dental clinics in Costa Rica and Guatemala...Goodness Dental is unique in their approach to patient care & the results are proof positive that their approach is a winner”

David Mair, CEO Soter Healthcare

In a comprehensive review of more than six hundred dental clinics in Costa Rica and four hundred dental clinics in Guatemala, Soter Healthcare found Goodness Dental to be a leader in reputation, quality outcomes, internationally-accepted dental care protocols and overall patient satisfaction. “Our patients come to us for advice and guidance to find the best dental and medical care around the globe,” says David Mair, CEO of Soter Healthcare. “Our review of Goodness Dental and our close relationship with company founder Patrick Goodness, makes us very comfortable recommending Goodness Dental to our network of patients across the USA.

Goodness Dental is distinguished as the number one ranked “best dental clinic” in Costa Rica and Guatemala for dental implants, all on 4 dental procedures and full mouth restorations by CostaRicaDentalGuide.com and GuatemalaDentalGuide.com. Goodness Dental is also ranked as the number one dental clinic in Costa Rica by Global Clinic Ratings, and was singled out by Becker's Dental Review as the leading dental clinic in Costa Rica. “Across the board, Goodness Dental has impressed patients and global accreditation organizations by demonstrating a consistent approach to high quality patient care,” says Mair.

“While there are many very good dental clinics in Costa Rica and Guatemala, our patients come to us for the best possible care. We take this responsibility very seriously and we only partner with medical and dental providers that meet our rigorous standards,” says Mair. “Goodness Dental is unique in their approach to patient care and the results are proof positive that their approach is a winner.”

Goodness Dental is the only clinic in Costa Rica and Guatemala with two licensed US dentists on staff to help patients make informed dental care decisions. Dr. Peter Aborn, a retired prosthodontist with 45 years of private practice and university professor career experience leads the Costa Rica dental team. Dr. John Bahr, a retired dentist with over 40 years of private practice experience leads the Guatemala dental team. Both dentists are available to help American patients during the clinic selection and patient care process.

“Our fourteen advanced-degree specialists manage cases that most dental clinics simply cannot handle,” says Dr. Peter Aborn, who was recognized by CNN for his work with aiding indigenous tribes in Costa Rica. “In the past month alone, we have managed patients with Multiple Sclerosis and Sjogren’s Syndrome as well as patients suffering from severe jaw trauma, TMJ disorder and degenerative diseases. Patients who cannot afford the high cost of dental care at home choose us for more affordable care.”

This highly specialized approach to dental care is what attracted Soter Healthcare to the Goodness Dental brand. “While many dental clinics in Costa Rica and Guatemala use general dentists to place implants and perform dental surgery, Goodness Dental works only with skilled specialists such as maxillofacial surgeons, dental implant specialists, prosthodontists, periodontists and endodontists to provide patients with the security of truly specialized care. This makes a critical difference for our patients and allows me to refer Goodness Dental with complete confidence,” says Mair.

While Costa Rica has long been a popular destination for dental tourism, Guatemala is now appearing as a future leader in affordable dental implants and all on four procedures. The quality of care in Guatemala is equal to the care provided in Costa Rica with the added benefit of lower prices. Prices in Guatemala are routinely 10% less than prices in Costa Rica. For patients seeking dental implants in Mexico, Guatemala offers a safer, higher quality alternative at approximately the same cost as dental care in Mexico.

“I have been very impressed with the outstanding level of specialists with Goodness Dental in Guatemala,” says Dr. John Bahr, who practiced in his own Kansas City clinic for more than 40 years before retiring recently. “The team is remarkably talented and friendly and the clinic is one of the most comfortable, modern and technologically-advanced dental clinics I have seen anywhere. Patients receive attentive, unhurried personal care and have world-class accommodations at the Marriott AC hotel located just next door to the clinic. These amenities are simply unmatched, even in the USA. Pricing for most procedures is up to seventy percent less than the same treatments in most US cities, making the care at Goodness Dental in Guatemala a real bargain.”
