

DevOps Agile Skills Association (DASA) Welcomes DASA Ambassadors in Germany

DASA is proud to announce its first DASA Ambassadors for Germany today at the German itSMF 17th Annual Conference in Koblenz, Germany

BLUE BELL, PENNSYLVANIA, USA, December 5, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- DASA announced the launch of its new Ambassador Program at the end of October, and since that time Managing Director, Deborah Burton has been traveling extensively to build connections with DevOps and Agile Thought-leaders across the globe, from Europe, USA, Japan and now Germany. The DASA Ambassador program has been designed to increase awareness for DASA both online and in local markets. DASA Ambassador's influence, create commitment, contribute and share DASA thought leadership. They actively contribute to advocating the development of high-performance teams through DevOps and Agile initiatives.

Today, Burton who is attending and presenting at the itSMF 17 Annual Conference in Koblenz, Germany took the opportunity to announce the appointment of Dierk Söllner, a distinguished Professional in IT Service Management, DASA Forerunner and DASA DevOps Training Partner along with Markus Bause, the visionary CEO of SERVIEW. SERVIEW is also a DASA Forerunner and DASA DevOps Training Partner as the first German inductees to DASA Ambassador Program.

"I am delighted to welcome both Dierk and Markus as our new DASA Ambassadors in Germany. Their commitment and passion have been instrumental in building awareness in the German market about the importance of skills and knowledge development required for IT professionals and teams to be successful as they embrace the new IT way of working that DevOps represents." "Together we will focus on creating local events that will allow for knowledge sharing and practical use cases on how DASA DevOps is empowering IT Transformational change" says Burton
