

Susan Burton, the Founder of A New Way of Life Re-Entry Project, Honors Influencers in the Struggle for Justice

ANWOL Marks its 19th Gala with Title Sponsor Drug Policy Alliance by Honoring Sen. Holly Mitchell, Ben L. Crump, Esq., ANWOL Legal Department and Impact Justice

LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, December 8, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Social Justice Advocate Susan Burton remembers back in 1998 when she founded A New Way of Life Re-Entry Project (ANWOL). "We had a whisper of a chance to succeed," she recalled. "Through ANWOL, so much pain and suffering have been transformed into resilience, determination and hope for so many. A lot has happened since the beginning."

Among the many ground-breaking inroads accomplished by ANWOL, a grassroots non-profit, was its 19th Annual Gala and Awards Event hosted at The LA Hotel Downtown in Los Angeles, California. The gala's mistresses of ceremonies were Val Zavala, vice president of News and Public Affairs at KCET, the nation's largest independent public television station, and Margaret Prescod, host of Sojourner Truth, a public affairs program on Pacifica Radio stations KPFK 90.7 FM in Southern California, WPFW in Washington, DC, WBAI in New York City and several affiliate stations across the country.

"We are successful because of like-minded people who relentlessly fight for change," expressed Burton. This year's honorees were California State Senator Holly J. Mitchell (Community Champion Award), Civil Rights Attorney Benjamin

L. Crump, Esq. (Industry Impact Award), Impact Justice (Movement Builder Award), and A New Way of Life's Legal Department (Flozelle Woodmore Memorial Award). Each of the 2017 recipients understand and support ANWOL's mission to restore the civil rights of formerly incarcerated people and to empower, organize and mobilize formerly incarcerated people as advocates for social change and personal transformation.

"We [Black and Brown people] deserve equal justice under the law especially when I think about how Trayvon Martin, a Black young man walking home with a bag of candy and a can of iced tea became the number one national news headline in 2012," vocalized Crump who represents the Martin and Brown families and others in the most important and contentious cases of our time. "How could the case of Michael Brown with his hands up in Ferguson, Missouri get shot and killed in broad daylight - an 18-year-old kid? His body laid in the street for more than 4 hours."

Crump continued, in part, "We must stand for our community, to speak up for our community and fight for our community. If we don't, who will? That's why we stand with Susan Burton and A New Way of Life."

The theme, "The Progression," exemplifies ANWOL's ability to push forward with its vision of a world where every person can make decisions for his/her own life, is accountable for those decisions and is valued as a contributing member of the community and the mission to advance multi-dimensional solutions to the effects of incarceration.

"I'm committed to solutions to the injustices of mass incarceration for people like Geneva Cooley, a 70-year-old Black woman, who was sentenced to 999 years, 99 months and 99 days for drug trafficking," asserted Burton. "I met her at the Julia Tutwiler Prison for Women in Wetumpka, Alabama. Geneva is experiencing death by incarceration for riding on a train with drugs."

change the narrative about mass incarceration among women and has taught at Yale to educate students about social injustice.

She has appeared on The Daily Show with Trevor Noah, Tavis Smiley, Starbucks' Upstanders, KTLA Channel 5, and more.

"The Drug Policy Alliance was enormously proud to stand as the title sponsor for A New Way of Life's 19th Annual Gala," said Maria McFarland Sánchez-Moreno, the Drug Policy Alliance's Executive Director. "We are delighted to support an organization that has done so much to defend and secure rights and equity for formerly incarcerated women and girls, allowing them not only to re-enter society,
