

Future Culture and Community of Living Earth

Avenya, a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization, recently launched a Kickstarter for a short documentary film about the spiritual connection between us and the Earth.

SAN FRANCISCO, CA, USA, December 14, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Imagine, every day you wake up, go to work, and experience life the same way day in and day out. One day, you find yourself in sadness, as life's emptiness and distance takes over, you place your head in your hands and in this sadness you sink within. With your attention inside of yourself, you stumble upon an inner light, then beneath your feet you can feel the pulse of the Earth as it reaches up to touch you within. It's not easy to remain in this place, as your attention is pulled to the worries of the day, your list of things to do. To your dismay, you're pulled out of the experience, as it becomes lost in the sands of time...

Avenya is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the education of what it means to consciously reconnect to the Earth's spiritual domain, our own soul, and the source of life and through this connection, learn to live life from this greater context. Avenya's team, for the past 6 years, has engaged in meditative work to re-connect with this invisible world. Through this process, they have discovered what it means to re-connect, live, create, and engage with life in a way that reflects this beautiful connection. Avenya recently launched a Kickstarter campaign for a short documentary film entitled "Future Culture & Community of the Living Earth". The short film will introduce what it means to re-connect to this spiritual domain, some of the challenges encountered along the way, and why this re-connection to the Earth's spiritual domain is so important.

Collectively, humanity has lost touch with the Earth's spiritual domain. This is reflected in our values and actions as we bend over backwards to reach the end while the present moment continually slips between our fingers. Learning how to re-connect with the world of the spirit can lead us to experience inner peace, fulfillment, and a sense of belonging. Out of this relationship, new ways of life can emerge that stream from the spiritual evolution of our planet and our own souls. The future of relationships, ecology, and peace all hinge on this re-connection and reorientation.
