

Veluxity: An Exotic Car Service Worth Knowing About

Spending a day in an exotic car is now made possible for residents or travelers in these cities.

MIAMI BEACH, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES, December 18, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- With Winter Solstice right around the corner much of the country is currently scraping the ice off their windshields and debating whether they should finally make that splurge on the snowblower and give their backs a break. It's hard to believe, at the other end of the country near the southernmost tip of the United States a Miami exotic car rental service called Veluxity is just entering it's busiest season of the year.

Veluxity is an exotic car rental service which services both the greater New York City and Miami Area and has done so since it's conception in 2014. The service allows clients to experience an exotic vehicle hourly, daily, weekly or monthly. "With the snowfall coming in so early this year, we are seeing an increasing number of clients flying in from the Northeastern and Midwestern Region of the US to hop in one of our Ferrari, Lamborghini, or Rolls Royces for a few days" says Ronald Petruska, Founder of Veluxity. But don't assume this service doesn't come at a price, 24 hours in Veluxity's Ferrari 458 Spider will run you about $1500, which amounts to about the cost of a 75" LED Smart TV, couch potatoes beware.

With such a large inventory, one of the main struggles rental companies face is risk prevention. Many companies (including Veluxity) prevent risk by installing state of the art tracking systems in their vehicles which are able to monitor abrupt steering, rapid acceleration, speed, brake pressure and the vehicles location. Theft is a serious concern with these types of vehicles as rental car companies are amongst the most frequently targeted by large car stealing rings. "We've never been targeted, but have heard some seriously scary stories" said Ronald.

The exotic and luxury car rental market has seen steady growth through 2017 and appears to be a growing trend for the traditional car enthusiast and traveler. With the introduction of social media, image has become more important than ever, and what could enhance a persons image more than pulling up to their next business meeting in a Green Lamborghini Huracán Spyder? Not many things. Veluxity plans to expansion to Los Angeles in summer 2017 — with plans to expand to San Francisco, and Las Vegas afterward, according to the company.
