Commercial Aircraft Catalytic Ozone Converter Market 2018

Catalytic ozone converter is a device used in aircraft to eliminate the undesired ozone in the air flow that is supplied to the aircraft cabin space by converting ozone to oxygen. Such converters usually include a catalyst reactor bed that is exposed to the air flow stream to decompose the ozone to oxygen. The demand and consumption of commercial aircraft catalytic ozone converters are highly dependent on the increase in the adoption of air management systems. There is strong evidence that the air management system manufacturing industry will witness a significant growth owing to the demand for improved flight experience from airline operators, who intend to ensure a comfortable and safe environment within the aircraft cabin. This market will also propel by the increasing number of commercial aircraft procurement, especially in the narrow-body aircraft and regional jet segments. Asian countries will procure a higher number of technologically advanced aircraft due to the substantial increase in passenger traffic in this region. Such developments will enhance the requirement of air management systems, thereby increasing the consumption of catalytic ozone converters.

The analysts forecast the global commercial aircraft catalytic ozone converter market to grow at a CAGR of 5.23% during the period 2017-2021.
