LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, January 26, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Beautiful, all-natural cam sensation Ginger Banks and sultry fitness MILF Raven Hart did an interview with Hollywood Life last week, “Porn Stars Explain Why Fellow Adult Stars Are Suffering & Dying,” that has gone viral, getting picked up by online news websites all over the world.

Adult Stars Discuss the Recent Passing of Porn Stars

“Since the article came out, my fans have been coming up to me at AEE this week in Las Vegas wanting to talk about this subject,” says Ginger. “If the article helps start a dialogue about depression and online bullying, I’m all for it.”

“The industry has been getting a lot of press in the last few weeks, I want the general-public to see us as real people with real issues,” says Raven. “I’m just glad I wasn’t asked if I ever had sex with Donald Trump, I’d rather talk about important things.”

Ginger, who is active in the #WeAreMany sex worker movement, admitted in the exclusive interview about her own struggles with depression. “The way society looks at and treats porn stars makes us more depressed, it is hard to feel like we don’t belong or that we are second class citizens,” she says. “I have suffered depression because of the way people view my job. That is the worst part of this job, the way people treat me because of what I do for a living.”

Raven, a 40-year-old MILF revealed that even though she’s relatively new to the industry, her age and experience has kept her grounded. “If you get into this business really, young, and you are already predisposed to your own personal issues of depression or whatever else, working in porn may intensify your issues, this is not a career for everyone. When you are younger you get taken advantage of more and if you don’t stand up for yourself or you don’t make it known that you are a professional, then these types of things can happen,” she told HollywoodLife.com.
