

Diane K. Willbrandt to be Featured on CUTV News Radio

ESTERO, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES, February 12, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- When most people reach retirement age they are ready for a well- deserved life of relaxation, new hobbies and having fun in the sun. Still others have such a penchant for working they seek new careers that bring them renewed joy.

Diane is a retired educator who taught first grade and special need students for thirty-two plus years and continues to work as a full- time flight attendant for Delta Airlines as well as a first rate skin care consultant for the world renowned skincare company Rodan + Fields, founded by the Proactive dermatologists.

“Since the age of five I always aspired to be a teacher,” says Diane. “It was such an incredibly magnificent career and thoroughly rewarding for me to interact so closely with children and be a monumental part of their extraordinary growth and development.”

When Diane was ultimately ready to retire from teaching she found herself still longing for a sense of purpose, mental stimulation, and a prodigious way to stay connected to people in general.

“Becoming a flight attendant opened up limitless doors to a new and thrilling career,” says Diane. “What could be more fulfilling than traveling to amazing places, working flexible hours, and consistently meeting wonderful new people. Whenever I put my uniform on I feel glamorous and it keeps me feeling young and vibrant so it’s an extremely full life.”

Her other job with Rodan + Fields complement’s Diane’s fascination for keeping up with beauty trends and encouraging women and men all over the world to take good care of their skin. As a top notch consultant she praises the effectiveness of Rodan + Fields superior products for combating all skin issues such as acne, sagging skin, fine lines, rosacea, and aging. Clients can receive expert help directly from Diane who wholeheartedly stands by their products which have done wonders for her own skin.

“Between my two magnificent job I am able to reconnect with old acquaintances and meet lots of new friends,” says Diane. “It has unequivocally given me renewed self-confidence, interpersonal skills, self- growth and the chance to help both men and women find not only their best skin ever, but the opportunity to own their own business and work out of their homes”

Diane emphatically believes all women should seek independence, be cognizant of their true identity, and welcome new opportunities by finding the inner strength to take chances.

“ I’m immensely proud of my accomplishments because I put myself through college and followed my dreams to become a teacher,” says Diane. “Then when the opportunity presented itself to become a flight attendant I embraced it and have never looked back with regret.”

Encouraging women to follow their career goals by doing what they love most is Diane’s message of optimism and hope.

“We need to pursue our goals with dedication, devotion, and most of all love because that’s the central key to everything,” says Diane. “If you love what you do then you will undeniably have a fulfilling life.”
