BERLIN, GERMANY, February 21, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- rent24 has opened its first coworking space in Frankfurt. It is one of the leading European coworking and coliving providers, offering startups, freelancers and established companies a unique view over Frankfurt. The options in the 142 meters high office centre range from open-space workplaces to private offices and fully equipped conference rooms. "Especially the community factor is unique. Whether it's at our events, workshops or joint sports courses - our community is growing together, constantly developing, and supporting ongoing success," says Robert Bukvic, founder and CEO of rent24 GmbH.

The FBC Tower is located in the central district of Westend, at Mainzer Landstraße 46, a striking main street which runs parallel to the Rhine. The micro-location is populated with numerous cafes, restaurants and outdoor facilities.

"Future trends start in Frankfurt" because Frankfurt is a hub in Germany for many visitors and a creative metropolis. "We're pleased to be able to offer a location in this exciting city and to grow here even further", commented Bukvic.

rent24 members not only have a large network of coworking spaces at their disposal, so they can work flexibly and change cities or countries; also they have overnight accommodation options in coliving spaces. "We're opening the first coworking and coliving campus in Berlin in April and are looking forward to welcoming members from Frankfurt as well", says Bukvic.
