American CyberSystems, Inc. (dba ACS), a provider of IT Consulting, Engineering Consulting, Healthcare, Talent, and Workforce Management Solutions, announced today that it has completed its acquisition of GGK Technologies a global IT consulting company. The GGK Technologies acquisition gives ACS synergies in the IT consulting and development space, allows for expansion into new areas, and provides options both on-shore and off-shore, to best benefit the clients.

“The successful acquisition of GGK Technologies presents new opportunities for ACS and positions us to accelerate our growth plans in the marketplace,” said Raj Sardana, ACS’s CEO. “Together, we are well-positioned to meet the evolving needs of the companies we serve.”

Sardana continued, “The acquisition of GGK Technologies allows us to accelerate our plans for growth in specific desirable geographies and capitalize on marquee client opportunities. The GGK Technologies legacy of solutions development and service excellence will remain intact and will be a strong complement to ACS and our combined client base.”

The combination provides for deeper and broader subject matter expertise and experience across the IT solutions spectrum. As Shyam Palreddy, GGK’s Founder said “We are excited to be part of ACS and we will be able to bring a greater value proposition to our clients with a broader range of offerings. GGK also gets access to the strong sales and support teams at ACS, which will help create greater value for our combined client base.”
