

History of Honor: New Video Commemorates Lion's Park

Lion's Park was established to commemorate 911 heroes and those who have given their lives during any timespan while serving in the U.S. military.

WOODLAND PARK, COLORADO, UNITED STATES, March 2, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Park State Bank and Trust recently announced that a new video, which was produced on September 11, 2017, commemorating 911 and the Lion's Park memorials, is now available to the public for viewing online at <https://vimeo.com/256024131>.

This 10-minute video, narrated by Woodland Park City Manager, David Buttery, describes the history of the memorials from fallen military members from the community.

Buttery traces the history of each fallen war hero in a touching tribute so that citizens never forget the sacrifices of those who protect our Nation.

"As a community bank we felt that the stories behind the statues to our local fallen military heroes should be understood now and for future generations for those who visit Lion's Park."

Tony Perry, Park State Bank & Trust President

"As a community bank we felt that the stories behind the statues to our local fallen military heroes should be understood now and for future generations for those who visit Lion's Park, said Tony Perry, Park State Bank & Trust President.

"The best way to capture this history was through the video, narrated by Buttery, who is also a U.S. Army Retired Lt Col."

Production was made possible by Park State Bank & Trust and the video was co-produced by Spot On Productions and perini & associates.

The public is encouraged to view, share and save "The History of Honor, Lion's Park" video.
