

The Scientists' Channel: A Revolutionary New Video Platform for Scientists Worldwide to Communicate Innovation

Launched by SelectScience, The Scientists' Channel aims to accelerate vital research globally through enhanced communication across multiple scientific fields

BATH, SOMERSET, UNITED KINGDOM, March 9, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Scientists' Channel (www.thescientistschannel.com) is a revolutionary new platform that places scientists and their work first. Never has there been a complete video platform for scientists to present their work, share innovations and expertise, and publicize their organization — until now.

From global online science publisher SelectScience, The Scientists' Channel is the perfect place for scientists to broadcast their videos to a worldwide audience through a fully moderated, independent and trusted platform. The content covers a wide spectrum of scientific fields, from cell culture and mass spectrometry, to clinical laboratory diagnostics and drug discovery. The platform is funded through sponsorship by industry, academia and scientific societies.

Arif Butt, CEO and Founder of The Scientists' Channel

Arif Butt, President and CEO of SelectScience, said: “The Scientists' Channel is the very essence of scientists communicating innovation. We are proud to be collaborating with many fantastic scientists who are sharing their knowledge through video and I look forward to welcoming many more onto the platform in the near future.”
